On 24 April 2017, Narodowy Bank Polski will be putting into circulation a collector coin commemorating Nicolaus Copernicus, with a face value of 10 zł. This will be the first coin of the series: "The Great Polish Economists".

Narodowy Bank Polski is the central bank of the State, responsible for its monetary policy and price stability. The Bank's functions are described in the Constitution of the Republic of Poland and the Act on NBP. NBP holds the exclusive right to issue the currency of the Republic of Poland. As the central bank, it does not provide accounts for the general public, accept deposits from or extend loans to individuals. It acts as a banker to the State budget and public sector entities. NBP also holds and manages the foreign exchange reserves of the State. Finally, it functions as a banker to banks, creating conditions for the operation of the Polish banking system. Narodowy Bank Polski is one of the most important research and analytical centres in the fields of economics and financial markets. For more information on NBP visit: www.nbp.pl

The Enduring Soldiers Accursed by the Communists – Danuta Siedzikówna alias Inka

Born 3 September 1928 in Guszczewina, murdered 28 August 1946 in Gdańsk.

The daughter of Waclaw Siedzik, a forest ranger, and Eugenia Tymińska. During the Second World War she lost both parents. She grew up in the cult of the January Uprising of 1863, in which her ancestors had taken part. She joined the Polish Home Army in December 1943, and took on a pseudonym “Inka” (in remembrance of a school friend). In October 1944, she started working as a clerk in the forest district office of Narewka. Along with all other employees, she was arrested by an NKVD (Soviet secret police agency) and UB (Polish secret police under Communism) group in June 1945 on the charge of collaboration with “bands of reactionary underground movement”. Released by one of patrols of the 5th Wileńska Brigade of the Polish Home Army, commanded by Major Zygmunt Szendzielarz alias Łupaszka. Afterwards she could continue as a clerk in the Miłomłyn forest district office but she chose to fight for Poland, by joining, as an orderly, the squadron of Major Zdzisław Badocha alias Żelazny.

She was arrested on the night of 19 to 20 July 1946, when the cover of a safe house in Gdańsk Wrzeszcz was blown. She was subject to close questioning at UB. The communists charged her of participation in the “Łupaszka’s band”, unlawful possession of arms, and – this juvenile orderly – of ordering to kill two secret police officers. Even the “court” subordinate to the secret police agency did not prove her guilty of the “crime”, neither did two of five policemen giving evidence “voluntarily”, whom Łupaszka’s soldiers had spared their lives, confirm the “crime”. One of the policemen even testified that she had dressed his wounds after a battle. During the investigation secret police agents tried to get out from Siedzikówna the information on Łupaszka’s whereabouts. She did not betray her commander.

She was sentenced to death by the verdict of the District Military Court in Gdańsk of 3 August 1946. She did not ask Bolesław Bierut (Polish communist leader at that time) for pardon, because in the letter prepared by a defence counsel her colleagues from the troop had been called bandits. She was murdered at 6.15 a.m. on 28 August 1946 in the Gdańsk prison at Kurkowa Street, just six days before her 18th birthday. Before she died she managed to cry out: “Long live Poland!”, “Long live Łupaszko!”. Shortly before her death, in the kite smuggled to Mikołajewski sisters from Gdańsk, Inka wrote: “Tell my grandma that I acted as I should”.

In the 1990s, the Regional Court in Gdańsk declared the verdict sentencing Inka to death to be invalid and pronounced “in connection with the activity of Danuta Siedzikówna for the sovereignty of the Polish State”.

On 12 September 2014, Inka’s mortal remains were found under the flagstones in the Garrison Cemetery in Gdańsk by the team led by Professor Krzysztof Szwaagrzyk. On 1 March 2015, the Institute of National Remembrance announced that they had managed to identify Danuta Siedzikówna.

On the 70th anniversary of the execution of such disgraceful sentence, the state funeral of Danuta Siedzikówna alias Inka and Feliks Selmanowicz alias Zagończyk took place on 28 August 2016.
